SELECTED PROJECTS

- | | |
|---------------------|--|
| Nov 2023 to present | The Peaceful Demonstrator Study Small protest figures and public interventions that investigate how paradoxical messages can open attention and civic reflection. |
| 2023 to present | ALLESANDERSSTADT WaMü Kollektiv Six interactive miniature city worlds built inside discarded Berlin rooftop windows. Found materials, light, mechanics, political fable, and grassroots urban imagination form a transformation story. |
| In development | Sustainable Reflecting Human powered mobile installation made from reflective discarded materials, connecting physical effort, reflection, and sustainability. |
| 2024 | WaMüLage WaMü Kollektiv Participatory public installation at Tempelhofer Feld. Visitors contributed found or self produced rubbish to an evolving collective composition. |

COLLECTIVE PRACTICE

Co founder and artist | WaMü Kollektiv

WaMü Kollektiv, "Was ist Müll?" or "What is rubbish?", works across sculpture, painting, fashion, music, and theatre. The collective transforms discarded materials into public installations and participatory work addressing sustainability, overconsumption, cultural space, and urban development from below.

Member | EDGE Neuroscience & Art, Berlin

EDGE is an international nonprofit network connecting neuroscience and the arts. Within this community, Tobias Eder contributes to exchanges on neuroaesthetics, creativity, cognition, and embodied experience, bringing artistic practice into dialogue with scientific research.

ART AND RESEARCH

Eder brings artistic practice together with psychology and cognitive neuroscience. His current work develops artistic interventions as experimental paradigms for investigating attention, interpretation, emotion, and public engagement.
